

Education Practicum Experiences

As an education student, I often wonder: "Did my students actually learn what I taught them?" During 50+ hours of observations and interactions in Mrs. Galindo's third-grade classroom at Parkside Elementary, I discovered that students respond to engaging and meaningful exploration of familiar topics. My time there equipped me with new strategies that help build student confidence and knowledge that grow a student's schema. Through grading tests, leading small groups and teaching new math and reading content, I have learned how meaningful, engaging content is to students' learning.
